PROFILE

Francisco joined JHA as an Associate in October 2018, having previously spent over nine years in private practice both in the UK and Venezuela. He advises and represents multinational companies in relation to tax and transfer pricing matters.

Francisco has particular experience of international and EU tax law matters, and tax-related disputes under international investment treaties or long-term concession agreements providing for tax stabilisation. He guides international investors through complex cross-border transactions, particularly those involving large scale energy, infrastructure or construction projects.

Francisco is knowledgeable of the oil and gas, infrastructure, sports, and media industries, and is very experienced in matters relating to Latin America. He is bilingual English and Spanish.

He is regularly invited to be a guest lecturer in the EU Tax Law and Transfer Pricing modules in the LLM Programme at King's College London.
